ABSTRACT

Since the early 1990s India has undergone substantial economic policy reforms and economic growth. Though reforms in agricultural policy have lagged those in other sectors they have nonetheless created a somewhat more open economic orientation. In this study we evaluate the protection and support versus disprotection of agriculture in India. Agrarian reform in India had been adopted to reallocate the agricultural resources among all the people directly connected with agriculture. After Independence the Government of India started the process of building equity in rural population and improvement of the employment rate and productivity. So for this reason the Government had started agrarian reform.
